

Hwang Yu-Ning

Chief Planner & Deputy Chief Executive Officer
Urban Redevelopment Authority (URA)
Singapore

As Chief Planner, Yu-Ning oversees Singapore's urban planning including conservation of built heritage. Starting as the business user lead for her agency's Geographic Information System, she went on to support the formation of URA's Digital Planning Lab which has since grown to become the Whole-of-Government's Urban Planning & Design Technology Centre of Excellence to drive innovation and strengthen coherent evidence-based planning.

Prior to her current role, she has served in various capacities in Singapore's public service including with the Strategy Group of the Prime Minister's Office and the Strategic Planning Division of the Ministry of National Development.

Yu-Ning is a fellow of the Singapore Institute of Planners and chairs the Singapore Institute of Certified Planners Accreditation Panel. She is a trustee with the Urban Land Institute, the oldest and largest network of cross-disciplinary real estate and land use experts in the world. She is also a member of its Asia-Pacific executive committee.

She serves on a number of boards including Singapore's Land Transport Authority, Singapore Science Centre and the Board of Management of CHIJ Schools. She also serves on the Scientific Advisory Committee of the Singapore-ETH Centre Governing Board for the Future Cities Lab (FCL) Global Research Programme.

Her academic background is in architecture, urban planning and public policy with degrees from the National University of Singapore and Harvard University.
